

Head Honcho.

CEO

Vantage Point, Edinburgh
£90,360

We couldn't make it plainer. Our new CEO must, first and foremost, be a leader. Someone who can head up the organisation and drive it towards an agreed strategic vision. Someone who can make decisions, and not just the easy ones. And, most importantly, someone who is able to set a standard and work to it (we won't just do as you say, we'll do as you do).

As well as great leadership and people skills, there are also several other qualities the body requires of the head. You must be a hands-on, not hands-off type of manager. You must be approachable, not distant. And you must be an exemplary relationship builder, adept at smoothly networking with our stakeholders (the Council, local politicians and partner organisations). Not to mention all of the many other duties and responsibilities expected of an experienced and capable Chief Executive Officer.

Edinburgh Leisure is a great organisation and we cannot underestimate the importance of a great leader to keep us on track. If you think that might be you, head to our website for more details.
